

FIELD EQUIPMENT LENDING LIBRARY

A FREE resource available to all City Agency Employees

New York City is reducing energy use and carbon emissions in its municipal buildings.

Brought to you by the NYC Department of Citywide Administrative Services Energy Management division (DEM), the CUNY Institute for Urban Systems Building Performance Lab, and the CUNY School of Professional Studies, the Field Equipment Lending Library (FELL) is fully stocked with equipment for measuring, diagnosing, and optimizing building equipment and systems, from boilers to air handling units to solar panels.

Through FELL, we provide them with specialized equipment they need to get the job done.

Together, DEM and CUNY have trained more than 2,000 New York City facilities personnel in skills that help them:

- Eliminate energy waste
- Evaluate & maximize building systems performance
- Improve occupant comfort

FELL staff is available to help with selection of equipment and to provide any training or installation support that borrowers may need-totally free of charge. And FELL now offers complimentary courier delivery and pick-up service to all five boroughs.
